The Watson Metal Masters Story

Springfield, Missouri is often referred to as the "Stainless Steel Tank Capital of America." So if you're in this business in Springfield the competition is fierce. But, that's when you roll up your sleeves, create visionary goals and do it better than everyone else. Over the years that's exactly what Watson Metal Masters has done.

Spearheaded by owner and president Bill Schahuber, with 39 years of varied experience in this highly competitive environment, Watson Metal Masters has become a major force. He teamed with Rex Watson in 1996, eventually purchasing the company in 2012 and started a growth pattern that continues today. After more than doubling its staff, Watson Metal Masters constructed a new state-of-the-art manufacturing facility in 2014 to efficiently handle the load. And now, they are expanding again...once more doubling fabrication capabilities and enabling the company to construct tanks of incredible size and quality.
